

Holiday for the eyes with Maurizio Cagnoli in Italy. July 6-13

The Sant' Andrea convent is a center of social and spiritual activity near Rome. Situated in a very quiet location, it overlooks a landscape of rolling hills. A short walk leads to the ancient and noble village of Collevocchio. Here, we train our eyesight in the shade of oak and olive trees. The gentle landscapes and picturesque medieval villages create a restorative environment for the mind and stimulate visual functions. In addition to indoor and outdoor spaces, we enjoy the village's panoramic swimming pool, which is practically around the corner.

A pool?

It's not a secret that I really love water. I always try to have a pool, a beach or a lake at my disposal. Water helps us release tension, it helps us look into the distance, it teaches us to flow, which is the basic secret of good vision. As well as refreshing ourselves, we can practice Watsu and Aguahara and discover how relaxing it is.

WHAT YOU CAN ACHIEVE:

See more clearly without glasses.
Improve or eliminate astigmatism.
Eliminate headaches, tension, and eye strain.
Improved coordination and balance.
Improved mood, optimism, and self-confidence.
Energy and knowledge.
Well-being in your relationships with others

+ something you might not have expected:

Night vision: improves night vision, develops peripheral vision, avoids glare.
Tuning and rebalancing of left and right eyes, resulting in a rebalancing of our masculine and feminine parts and of the body-mind relationship.
Better posture, better balance, better coordination of movements.
